JINGOISM IN GREAT BRITAIN

The Seizure of the Malacca Calls for Drastic Action.

THE PEOPLE AND PRESS JOIN IN THIS DEMAND

Want the English Vessel Taken by Force From the Russians.

BALFOUR MINISTRY FACES EXTREMLY GRAVE SITUATION

The London Times Says "Russian Government Must Not Adhere to an Attitude Plainly Untenable"--French Diplomat Upholds Russia's Actions Feeling of Unrest Is Reported on the Stock Exchange.

London July 21—Jingoism is rampant throughout Great Britain today and the Balfour ministry faces a situation which will require the exercising of the most careful diplomacy if the nation is not plunged into war. That a royal mail steamer, one of the Peninsular and Oriental line, should be permitted to sail from a port nominally under British control a prize of war and with the hated Russian flag flying at her topmast in stead of the blood red standard of England is so worked on the minds of both press and people that a practically unanimous demand for drastic action has been made. And this demand is not confined to the extremists but comes with even greater force from those who in the past have always advocated exhausting all diplomatic methods before even considering radical action.

Even the statement that it is well nigh certain that the Russian prize court may be expected to eventually order the release of the Malacca after a hearing has been given in the case has had no effect in stilling the popular clamor for revenge. That will not satisfy the British people. They want the vessel taken by force from the Russian prize crew if she is not immediately released.

As showing the temper of the people the leading editorial in the Times today is a conspicuous example. After referring to the representations made to Russia by the British minister Sir Charles Hardinge, the Thunderer says:

Could we seriously entertain the suggestion that the Russian government will disregard the representations and neglect to release the Malacca, with the delay the situation will at once assume a character of extreme gravity. It is best that there should be no misunderstanding on this point. No government could allow the Malacca to be taken to a Russian port or to be condemned by a Russian prize court. The Russian government must not adhere to an attitude plainly untenable. The situation might at any moment become extremely serious, but it can only become serious by the Russian government committing an act of [illegible] and folly of which Englishmen will be sorry to believe them capable.

Russia having failed to release the Malacca and having instead ordered her to proceed to Libau, it would [illegible] that the situation referred to by the Times has arrived.

On the other hand continental critics appear to believe that Russia is entirely within her rights in taking the Malacca to a Russian port for trial by a prize court. In this connection a [illegible] French diplomat said today:

The Malacca became a prize of war because the Russian government became possessed of what they consider absolutely reliable information that she carried ammunition and the iron work for a monster steam crane consigned to the Japanese naval dock at [illegible]. Her agents admit that there was ammunition on board of her but claim it was destined for the British arsenal at Hong Kong. That may be so but in view of the fact that the steamer was bound for Yokohama it appears to me that it is necessary for her owners to show absolutely that there was no intent to let the munitions of war fall in the hands of the Japanese. The seizure of the Malacca was not a hastily conceived under the impulse of a moment. Rather it was one of deliberation, believed to be absolutely justified under the regulations of international law and therefore no one can [illegible] that Russia insists upon [illegible] the vessel within the jurisdiction of her courts.

[illegible] of unrest throughout the [illegible] reflected on the stock exchange today. The market opened in an excited state with a [illegible] tendency displayed in every class of securities.

So far as the actual news of the war is concerned it is known that hostilities have been resumed south of Liao Yang. General Kuropatkin has been compelled to again give battle and it is rumored in all of the continental news centers that he has again been defeated and this time with very heavy losses. The details of the engagements are still held back by the strict censorship so that it is impossible to do more than guess at the extent of the fighting or the place where it took place.

It seems certain that Liao Yang and the fortifications south of Mukden are the prizes being contested for and upon the termination of the struggle depends the supremacy of Southern Manchuria.

Another Boat Seized

London July 21—A despatch to Lloyds states that the British steamship Pak Ling, Captain Lewis, which sailed from Middlesboro on June 18 and from London on July [illegible] for Yokohama with a general cargo and several passengers on board has been captured by the Russian.

She sailed from Gibraltar on July 7 and is supposed to have been taken in the Red sea near where the Malacca was picked up. She is a large steamer of 2,87[illegible] tons burden and is an extremely valuable prize.

This news has created a sensation here and war risks which yesterday were but a few shillings are today quoted at Lloyds at ten guineas.

Is Ordered Released

St Petersburg July 21—It is reported here that the government has ordered the release of the steamer Malacca should a search of her cargo hold show that no contraband of war is on board.

Kak-Ling Not Seized

London July 21—A feeling of relief passed over the city this afternoon when Lloyds corrected their announcement of the morning that the steamer Pak Ling has been seized by the Russians. They stated that their correspondent at Perim had cabled them that the Pak Ling had passed that port apparently all right. It is believed that she was only stopped and her papers examined and then permitted to proceed on her way no contraband being found.

Russian Defeat Reported

St Petersburg July 21—It is rumored here than the Russian reconnoissance in force in the direction of Motienshi pass has been disastrously defeated by the Japanese. The Russian losses are reported to have been very heavy.

Recovers Lost Ground

St Petersburg July 21—The newspaper Novosti prints a despatch from its correspondent with the Russian column at Tasshichiao stating that a force of Japanese attacked a Russian detachment to the eastward of that place and it was a bloody encounter. The Russians finally drove the Japanese back and succeeded in capturing ten Japanese guns. They then followed up their advantage and reoccupied all of the positions formerly held by the Japanese so far east as Sumuse.

GLAZNER HUNG AT PITTSBURG

CONDEMNED CHARGED WITH MURDERING HIS SWEETHEART

The Trial and Conviction Is Somewhat Out of the Ordinary Glazner Entirely Indifferent to His Fate Up to the Last

Pittsburg Pa July [illegible]1—Nicholas Glazner forty four years old was this morning executed in the county jail yard in expiation for the murder of Margaret Hall a servant girl with whom he had company for some time. Glazner was employed as a street car conductor.

The incidents of Glazner's trial and conviction are rather out of the ordinary. When arraigned in court on a charge of murder he pleaded guilty and refused to have an attorney appear for him. After the court appointed Attorney McCunn to present his case the prisoner left his attorney entirely unacquainted with the case. When Glazner was placed on the witness stand he flatly denied knowing anything about the killing. He said that he had been drinking and was talking to the girl when the shot was fired. He declared he did not know who had fired the shot but said that the concussion almost knocked him to the ground.

The usual appeals to the pardon board and governor were made in Glazner's behalf but were refused.

Glazner seemed entirely indifferent to his fate. No unusual incident attended the execution. The drop fell at [illegible] and death followed in ten minutes. Glazner leaves a wife who has for years been an invalid and several children.

JOY FOLLOWS END OF STRIKE

Smiling Is Packing House District This Morning.

TERMS PERMIT MEN TO RETURN TO WORK

Entire Matter Will Be Left to Arbitration Committee.

DONNELLY'S ACTION WILL BE COMMENDED BY UNIONS

A Special Meeting of the Packing Trades Council Is Called for To Night To Ratify Formally the Peace Agreement Men Will March Back to Work in a Body Just as They Went Out

Chicago July 21—There was much joy exhibited in the packing house district this morning over the settlement of the arbitration dispute and it was generally conceded that the executive board of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers union would tender to President Donnelly the necessary approval of his action in framing the proposed terms which allow of the strikers returning to work at the same wages just previous to the strike pending the selection and deliberation of the board of arbitration which shall finally adjust all the grievances the strikers had.

A special meeting of the packing trades council has been called for tonight to ratify formally the peace agreement. As soon as this action is taken the packers will be notified. From eleven cities where the strike has obtained and where members of the executive board are located have come telegrams this morning to President Donnelly expressing approval of the situation. The others will be heard from during the day and a unanimous result is expected.

At the yards this morning many of the striking employes returned to work without waiting for the day set when all should return in a body. The leaders are endeavoring to impress upon the men the desirability of marching back to work in the manner in which they departed from their employment to impress the onlooker with the magnitude of their union.

President Donnelly of the butchers union this morning said the organization is stronger than ever before and that there were but few desertions during the strike. Donnelly and his aide collected from the [illegible] this morning [illegible] quiet and seeking to suppress any dispute with the strike breakers [illegible].

The following statement was given out at noon today by [illegible] on behalf of the packers:

[illegible] should [illegible] the [illegible] question of return [illegible] these on strike [illegible] the agreement [illegible] the packers [illegible] returning in their employ all employes that have been [illegible] men the fair treatment [illegible] and gaining for [illegible] of the most important points which they contended for and for which they [illegible] out [illegible] of arbitration within the [illegible] days covers the [illegible] tion only and is [illegible] guarantee to the [illegible] that they will [illegible] the places now held by non union help.

LABOR ALLIES WITH A TRUST

IS THE UNUSUAL SPECTACLE PRESENTED AT WASHINGTON

Because the Heurich Brewing Company Will Not Raise the Price of Beer the Local Stationary Firemen's Union Orders a Strike

Washington July [illegible]1—The unusual spectacle is presented here today of a labor organization allying itself with a trust in an effort to raise the price of a commodity.

The local stationary firemen's union has ordered a strike at the Heurich Brewing company because that concern has refused to increase the price of beer two dollars per barrel.

The strike is the result of an agreement entered into between the Central Labor union and the brewers association, the latter being a combination of all the local breweries with the exception of the Heurich company. The brewery has [illegible] the trust by refusing [illegible] price of beer.

The union people allege that unless the Heurich raise their price $2 per barrel two of the local breweries in the trust will be forced to quit business. This is throwing a large number of union men out of work. On the other hand the Heurichs claim that raising the price of beer will force [illegible] or more [illegible] out of business with a consequent loss of work for their employes.

The Heurichs threaten to proceed against the brewers association and the labor organization under the Sherman anti trust law alleging a combination in restraint of trade and conspiracy to prevent competition.

M Rigolly in a Gobron Brillie machine covered the distance in [illegible].

They think he would take the stump for Judge Parker and be a drawing card in the campaign.

A LARGE OCEAN STEAMER BELIEVED TO BE ON FIRE

Vessel Is Sighted East of Fire Island Wednesday Night

New York July 21—The Cunard line steamer Aurania which arrived this morning from Liverpool reports that at 7 o'clock last night a craft on fire was sighted eighteen miles east of Fire island. Captain Dow of the Aurania said that the vessel was about 200 feet long and possibly a barge either oil or coal laden.

A steamer was close by her when sighted by the Aurania.

Reports reached the city last night from Eastport and other points on Long Island shore that a large ocean steamer was believed to be on fire as dense clouds of smoke were rising from a ship thirty miles out to sea. Her appearance indicated that she had been abandoned by her crew.

The Aurania's report indicates that the vessel is either a coal or oil carrier and because of the numbers of vessels always in the vicinity where the ship burned it is unlikely that any lives were lost.

A strict watch was kept on shore last night in case any lifeboats came ashore.

SISCO FOUND NOT GUILTY

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF MISS BERTHA WILLIAMSON

Sisco's Defense Is an Alibi and This Brings Him His Liberty--Murdered Girl, a Kentucky Belle Is Shot From Ambush

Marion Ky July 21—The jury in the case of George M Sisco charged with the murder of Miss Bertha Williamson rendered a verdict of not guilty last night at 9 o'clock. This is the second trial the first resulting in a hung jury.

Miss Williamson was assassinated from ambush on the night of October [illegible] 190[illegible] as she was returning to her home from Chapell Hill church which is four miles south of this place. She was a beautiful girl the belle of the neighborhood and had many admirers, among them Allie Sisco son of George M Sisco the defendant in this trial.

On several occasions her charms had been the cause of trouble among the boys in the community and in one of the disagreements Allie Sisco was shot and permanently disabled as a result. This caused the most intense feeling between the families of George M Sisco and Horace Williamson the father of the dead girl and this feeling was intensified by the fact that the Williamsons objected to young Sisco's attentions to their daughter.

The public was unprepared however for the tragedy when it became known that Bertha Williamson had been shot from ambush and killed. The assassin was concealed in a fence corner and as she and her [illegible] passed along the road the fatal shot was fired.

Many believe the shot was intended for Grover Brown who was with her that night and was not really aimed at her. George M Sisco was suspected and arrested. His defense was an alibi which has brought him his liberty with the trial.

DEFICIT IS $19,000,000

Such Is Last Report of National Treasury.

SOME APPREHENSION IN MONIED CIRCLES

Deficit Created by Heavy Expenditures at Beginning of Fiscal Year.

NATIONAL BANKS WILL NOT BE CALLED UPON

By the Beginning of September It Is Estimated That the Deficit Will Have Been Wiped Out and the Treasury Will Be Once More Sailing on an Even Keel -The Working Balance Is $31 000 000

Washington July 21—Heavy expenditures at the beginning of the fiscal year have resulted in creating a deficit this month of $19 000 000 and in reducing the treasury working balance from $50 000 000 its normal figure to $31 000 000.

Because of this situation there has been some apprehension in financial circles that the secretary of the treasury might find it necessary to again call upon the national banks for some of the government money held on deposit by them. It can be stated that the secretary has no such intention.

Most of the extraordinary expenditures incident to the beginning of a new fiscal year have already been met and from now on the receipts and expenses will begin to equalize themselves.

By the beginning of September five weeks hence it is estimated that the $19 000 000 deficit will have been wiped out and the treasury will be once more sailing on an even keel.

MADE HIS WIFE'S GOWNS

Creation of Blue Dimity Designed by a Pennsylvania Preacher

The Rev Frank Dowlin pastor of the Norwood (Pa) Methodist Episcopal church who has recently established quite a reputation as a dressmaker is greatly praised by his wife and parishioners says the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin

On a recent Sunday Mrs Dowlin appeared at the church services clad in a blue dimity gown that had been designed by her husband The creation excited widespread admiration on all sides

Mrs Dowlin in an interview said My husband is certainly a handy man He is a good dressmaker as well as preacher and seems to like the former occupation because it is a diversion from his pastoral work so this is not his first attempt at dressmaking Last winter he made me a dress and it was the prettiest one I had too Will he make me others I am sure he will

Mr Dowlin was at work preparing a sermon but was glad to know that people were taking such an interest in him When asked how he became so successful as a dressmaker he said My mother used to be a dressmaker and I obtained my ideas and knowledge from her Young preachers like young doctors and young lawyers need to economize in some ways and I find this an excellent way I do not intend to do dressmaking as a business however I would not make dresses even for the women in my church

This much discussed dress of pale blue dimity is in the eyes of the parish a dream There are white figures in the cloth and a white linen yoke is inserted at the shoulders and serves to give the dress as well as the wearer a stunning appearance The dress is a labyrinth of tucks and frills all of which Mr Dowlin made with the sewing machine a marvelous feat as expressed by a neighbor

Mrs Dowlin is a jolly little woman and was so overjoyed at her husband's work that she told her neighbors on Saturday that she would make her first appearance in the dress on Sunday morning Naturally the news spread and on Sunday as the young minister and his wife entered the church she received all of the attention for the first time Sidelong glances were cast in her direction during the services and afterward the pastor and his wife held a veritable reception Many were the congratulations received by the little pastor as his work excited the admiration of all

MARKS LEAVES THE HOSPITAL

So States a Telegram from Altoona Received, Saturday.

CONSIDERABLE MYSTERY IS INVOLVED IN THE CASE

According to Story of an Old Man Who Claims Young Man as His Son Marks Is on His Way Home from South Africa—Marks Goes to New Jersey

A dispatch received by Star Saturday from S B Fries secretary of the board of health at Altoona Pennsylvania states that Guy Marks left the hospital there for his home in New Jersey on July 1

The above only tends to deepen the mystery surrounding the case of the young man who while afflicted by smallpox was taken off a train at Altoona three weeks ago Marks claimed at the time he was enroute from Marion to New Jersey and it was thought he had contracted the disease in this city

A strange feature in connection with the case is the story told Sanitary Marshal James Entz by an old man residing in Hardin county claiming to be the father of Marks According to the old man's story his son of the same name had been in South Africa and was on his way home

Shortly before Marks was taken in charge by the Altoona authorities the elder Marks received a letter from his son in New York saying that he had arrived in America well and would start home at once If he is not the same Marks who was afflicted by smallpox at Altoona his disappearance is considered a remarkable coincidence The authorities are at sea

KOREAN DIPLOMACY

Making a Treaty With Japan and a Secret Message Sent to Russia

Since that fateful Feb 8 when the roar of twelve inch guns off Chemulpo and the long shivering echoes made the mountains tremble Seoul and the Korean government have been if possible even more bewildered than ever says a writer in the Outlook

What had we better do about it they ask Here are Japanese coming in 10,000 [illegible] of them This is neutral territory to be sure [illegible] home But there in Chemulpo harbor lie the dead Russian warships Variag and Koreitz once a terror to all kinds of yellow men now helpless no better than [illegible] How could the Japs ever [illegible]

We cannot halt these scoundrels let them go by Those wonderful ships are sunk in harbor too Let the Japs pass in peace But after that what had we better do about it

I say we like the Japanese from now on says one minister

I second says another

All in favor will please say aye The ayes have it And so the treaty is made a treaty with Japan but also a secret message sent to Russia at the same time saying

We have made an alliance with the Japanese but we hate them We love you and hope you will win Come quickly and save us

On receipt of news of victory at sea the emperor sends congratulations to the Japanese minister while underground messages are received from Russia saying Long may you live Will be with you in July

Green Diamond in South Africa

Considerable interest writes a correspondent of the Philadelphia Record has been aroused in Johannesburg by the discovery on a mining property at Kleinfontein of a green diamond of about three quarters of a carat The gem had slipped into a crevice in the iron plate of the crushing mill and was found during the dismantling of the mill to make room for a new stamp battery In 189[illegible] several seventy similarly colored diamonds were found upon the same property They had all slipped between the dies and escaped destruction It is conjectured that many other green stones were crushed out of existence It is the first time since that date that the [illegible] company proceeded to resume operations on this particular [illegible] which [illegible] and diamonds [illegible]

He Was a Sort of Sherlock Holmes Himself

He had listened wearily but without complaint to a long argument on the possibility of solving any and all sort of human riddles by the simple process of deduction When a lull occurred he remarked

I'm a sort of Sherlock Holmes myself For instance I can tell what a man's business is merely by watching him eat

Still explained one of the disputants Explain said the other

With pleasure he said Suppose a man comes into the restaurant and orders an oyster stew I watch him for a moment and discover that he is a banker I know it because the first thing he does is to look up his oyster with a spoon to make sure there has been no miscount

Pshaw grunted one of the listeners

Oh it's simple when you know how I'll admit he went on Now say I see a man look furtively around and then pocket a slice of bread What happens? Why I know that that man down in a hole is a gambler

Or if I see a fellow helping himself to pancakes and flipping them out one at a time from the bottom of the stack I know right away that he chips along regularly at poker

If he was a clothing salesman you know he would hold his pancakes up to the light and examine their texture

Any keen observer would be able to tell that the man who orders pie for instance and holds it up to his ear after shaking it is a jeweler He wouldn't even have to wait to see him lift off the top crust with the point of his knife and peer into the innards of the pastry These little things tell the whole story to one who is familiar with the art

Don't suppose you ever made a wrong deduction observed one of the disputants sneeringly

Never but once he replied and that wasn't wrong because I didn't make any Simply couldn't figure the thing out It was a puzzling case A fellow came in and ordered dinner The waiter gave him a glass of water He looked at it in surprise remarked that he hadn't ordered it and then proceeded to break his bread into the glass and eat it with a spoon That stumped me for a minute but the waiter cleared up the mystery for me Who is that fellow I asked Him said the waiter Oh he's only the milkman

The disputants glared at him but we fancy was all they said—New York Press

JAPAN AT NEWPORT

Society Woman Will Entertain In a Real Japanese Tea House

Japan will influence the Newport season and many novel Japanese ideas will be introduced at the fair city by the sea by leaders of the society folk who gather there for the gayeties of summertide, says the New York World.

The Japanese season will be led by Mrs. William K. Travers of New York, who will soon open a novel Japanese tea house in Ocean avenue, where she will entertain. Everything, including the decorations and costumes worn by hostess and guests, will be Japanese.

Mrs. Travers' costumes, heretofore very elaborate, will during the coming season run along Japanese lines. The ever popular kimono, so cool and delightful for summer, with slippers, fans and a parasol in harmony with the kimono, will be a decided change from the once popular lace robe and the decollete gown of paillettes and chiffon.

Not that Mrs. Travers intends to walk or drive along Bellevue avenue, play tennis at the Casino or promenade the hot sands of Spouting Rock beach in any such costume. Nay, nay. She simply intends to entertain her friends at her Japanese tea house in a costume quite in keeping with the surroundings.

Although maintaining a modest cottage on Bellevue avenue, known as the Weaver cottage, Mrs. Travers will spend a great deal of her time during the coming season at her tea house, with many midday luncheons, dinners and still later evening suppers for pleasant diversions.

Real Japanese will be in attendance during the summer, and dainty little Japs will cook and serve their dainty little dishes to the guests, who on many occasions will be asked to appear in Japanese costumes. Chop suey and tea are to be excluded from the menus.

This unique little place is about 200 feet south of the landing place of the Gooseberry Island Fishing club. It is 60 by 40 feet, is one story high and with its hunting thatched roof looks to be a very delectable spot for a summer retreat. The large room where the luncheons and dinners will be served will accommodate twenty-five guests, and the delightful little ante rooms will be found very attractive. A veranda ten feet wide stretches the entire length of the front of the building. The place is furnished throughout in Japanese style.

A SAMPLE AMERICAN YOUTH

Characteristics of a Rhodes Scholarship Winner

New York has cause for self congratulation in the representative that the state has chosen for the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford in the person of Warren Ellis Schutt, Cornell 1905, says the Illustrated Sporting News. The sturdy Ithacan will be as splendid a type of American manhood as will be sent abroad to the English university by any state in the Union.

Schutt's career is thoroughly interesting. He is the son of a prosperous farmer who lives six miles from Ithaca. Young Schutt got his primary education at a country school near his home and then won a four year scholarship in the Ithaca high school in a competitive examination. Instead of going into Ithaca to live or even driving to and from school with one of his father's teams, as he might easily have done, Schutt walked to and from the high school each morning and night. In this way he prepared for Cornell university. His first year in college he continued to walk to and from his home. His scholarship continued to be of the same high standard as in high school, and he took all the prizes and scholarships to which he was eligible, ending up with the Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford university.

In his sophomore year for the first time Schutt entered college athletics. Here the trainer took him under his care and developed him into the greatest cross country runner in the country. It was here his twelve miles of daily walking to and from his home counted in Schutt's favor in the physical condition of the athlete. He ran in Cornell's victorious cross country teams against Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania. On the track team he captured the two mile intercollegiate run and lowered the time. Last May he duplicated the feat and was subsequently elected captain of Cornell's 1905 track team. This position he will of course resign upon his going to England. He is only twenty years old, stands more than six feet in height and weighs 165 pounds.

Novel Place For a Den

A woman in Toledo is enjoying the building of a beautiful home, and the other day she was taking some friends through it, says the Toledo Blade. All over the house they went, upstairs and down, and were shown drawing room, music room, dining room, breakfast room, library, bedrooms, dressing rooms and every other room necessary to a modern home.

At last the lady said, "Come downstairs. I want to show you my husband's den." Down in the basement went the party and inspected the room set apart for the man of the house.

"Have you any improvements to suggest?" asked the lady with a smile.

"Only one," said her friend assumingly. "I should have put your husband in the subcellar instead of the basement."

Valentine Topley of Frankfort, Missouri, has a beard eleven feet long. We haven't the pleasure of Mr Topley's acquaintance but it is easy to guess that he either married money or that his better half is a hard working woman.

And yet the most unexpected thing about the St Louis exposition is the way in which it is meeting its obligations.

The season is now at hand, according to an exchange, when lifelong Republicans will be flocking into the Democratic fold and lifelong Democrats will be going over to the Republican camp, as is always the case at the opening of campaigns.

With that new French decoration on his breast the pictures of Secretary Hay will look more than ever like a Russian general.

"Are you a member of a Sunday school?" will probably be the next question to be added to life insurance application blanks.

The health of the Russian soldiery in the Far East is taken as another evidence of the health value of judicious pedestrianism.

Who would have imagined that the time would come when Grover Cleveland, William J. Bryan and Henry Watterson would be found supporting the same candidate?

Mr Timberlake of Steubenville refuses to make the race for congress, assigning as a reason that he believes the trusts are behind Parker. It is strongly hinted that Mr Timberlake is not anxious to pay the freight in a district which is normally 4,000 Republican.

Carrie Nation is going to Europe. The custodians of the old world art galleries should take precautionary measures.

If all Colonel Bryan says about Judge Parker is true, Son-in-Law Ellis can vote the straight Democratic ticket without turning a hair.

A Tokyo mob has stoned the home of Admiral Kamimura because he has failed to destroy the Vladivostok squadron under Skrydloff. Thus again do we see an exemplification of the imitative powers of the Japs. How truly they have caught the Springfield spirit.

James J. Hill is against Mr Roosevelt for the presidency. It could hardly be expected that the king bee of the Northern Securities company would fancy Mr Roosevelt.

Esopus is getting up in the world. George H. Daniels, general passenger agent of the New York Central, has issued a circular in which he states that West Shore trains will stop at Esopus owing to that station's sudden prominence. Then Mr Daniels gave out the information for which the land has been thirsting. He says: "As a matter of public interest and information as to train service to Esopus, the home of the Democratic presidential nominee, it may be stated that Esopus is on the river division of the West Shore railroad sixty-one miles from Albany, and all cut through trains over the New York Central make connections at Albany with the West Shore trains for Esopus."

The Eastland sailed from South Haven, Michigan, for Chicago Sunday night with 4,000 passengers aboard. The boat is licensed to carry about 3,000. So much was the steamer overcrowded that she was top heavy, and as she would list to one side the officers would order passengers to the other, using them as ballast, the engines meanwhile slowing down. The lake was smooth and the steamer by a miracle reached port in safety. How narrow was her escape only the panic stricken passengers probably realize. She reached port, hence no action will be taken against her officers. And she will doubtless be overcrowded again and again until sometime she will go down. Then when it is too late the usually useless investigation will follow. It may fix the blame but it will not restore the lost lives. What a pity, what a shame that action is not taken now and an example made of officers guilty of criminal carelessness, if not of wilful disregard of human life!

If Mr Bryan offered an indication of what he proposes to do in supporting Judge Parker, the Washington Post suggests, it would be interesting to know what he would do if he should decide to oppose him.

The physicians of the Queen City are agitating the passage of an anti-kissing resolution by the board of health. And this naturally causes us to wonder how our ancestors lived to ripe old ages despite the fact that the kissing evil flourished then as now. Danger may lurk in the kiss just as the so called deadly microbe lurks in about everything else, but somebody will have to show us. We don't believe it. Anyhow, who's afraid!

The manner in which Grand Duke Boris and his comic opera harem have been packed up and shipped back to Moscow indicates that the Czar is placing dependence on his soldiers and not on his royal fops.

The fellow citizens of Vice Admiral Kamimura admonish him either to catch Skrydloff or commit hari-kari and give some other commander a chance. There's an insight into the Jap way of thinking.

Rather than embarrass Abdul Hamid in regard to the passage of the Dardanelles Nicholas will bring his Black sea fleet out and discuss the propriety of his act after the war is over.

An Idaho editor who has six wives has been sent to prison. He should have settled in Utah and been sent to congress.

A Cleveland special intimates that Charles P. Salen is about to turn his back on Mayor Tom Johnson, his benefactor, to assume charge of the Parker campaign in the Forest City. The history of politics shows that continued success has only come to those who have been faithful to their friends. At the best the abandonment of Johnson by Salen could not be other than utterly disastrous save in case of the election of Parker, which is far from probable. But what would be left to Mr Salen in case of Parker's defeat? There would certainly be little show for what has been at best a very unsatisfactory tail to a very erratic kite.

Martin W. Littleton's excellent speech in placing Judge Parker in nomination at St Louis may land him in the gubernatorial chair at Albany, for which he is being boomed.

In other words Mr Ellis went into Menelik's territory simply as a colored porter and not as an envoy.

It's all owing to the view point. Some hold that David B. Hill hails from Brobdingnag, while others claim that he's a political Lilliputian.

Henry M. Stanley left an estate worth a million. This exploring business must be more profitable than generally thought.

Bryan Says He Has Nothing To Withdraw.

The Nashville American, one of the prominent Democratic papers of its state and section, recalls the fact that in a speech which he delivered in New York a few days before the St Louis convention assembled Mr Bryan spoke of Judge Parker as a man unfit to be trusted, a man for whom individuals and conventions had been bought. The American recalls the further fact that about the same time Mr Bryan in a speech delivered in Chicago declared that he could prove to every unbiased mind that Judge Parker is not a fit man to be nominated either by the Democratic party or by any other party that stands for honesty or fair dealings in politics.

After going back to his home in Lincoln, Nebraska, and ruminating for two or three days on the bitter cud that Judge Parker had tendered him Mr Bryan said to the country through the Associated Press: "I shall vote for Parker and Davis, the nominees of the Democratic national convention." Among his reasons he assigns for his decision not to bolt we find the following:

"Judge Parker stands for enough things that are good to justify me in giving him my vote, but as I have tried to point out for several months the triumph of the Wall street element of the party denies to the country any hope of relief on economic questions. I have nothing to take back. I have nothing to withdraw of the things that I have said against the methods pursued to advance his candidacy."

Nothing to withdraw! That is absurd. In coming to the support of Judge Parker Mr Bryan withdraws or takes back about all that he has been saying by tongue and pen during the last eight years. In accepting Judge Parker's candidacy Mr Bryan shoulders the "cross of gold" and presses the "crown of thorns" hard down on a bruised and aching head. All the rhetorical drapery with which he tries to disguise his surrender only makes the fact more prominent by showing how keenly he feels it.

With that lack of foresight which has been the most conspicuous feature of his political methods Mr Bryan has been continually employed in preparing for the humiliation ever since his first defeat. The silver issue was as dead in 1900 as it is today, but Bryan used the power of his peculiar position as the connecting link of a bipartisan combination to force a reaffirmation of the cold and clammy cadaver when more than two-thirds of all the Democrats in the country had become exceedingly weary of his pet scheme of currency debasement. Mr Bryan, personating Ruth and putting Naomi in place of sixteen to one, proclaimed: "Where thou diest will I die, and there will I be buried: the Lord do so to me and more also if aught but death part me and thee."

Well, the fates have parted me and thee, as they were bound sooner or later to do. Supporting Parker is supporting the gold standard and going squarely back on sixteen to one and a good deal else that was in the platform that Mr Bryan loved. Had his discretion been equal to his brilliancy he could and would have avoided such an intrenchment of himself in heresies and dead issues that his support of a sane and safe candidate would not have been a humiliating surrender.—Washington Post.

HER REPORT.

This is a special meeting of the literary club of Deerside, a Chicago suburb, called by the president to hear the report of Mrs Jones, who has just come back from St Louis. She attended a session of literary clubs while at the World's fair and her experiences are awaited with interest. Deerside is noted for its intellectuality.

The president—I'm sure we are all delighted to hear from Mrs Jones. There is so much to learn from a gathering of the sort she attended.

Mrs Jones—smiling and bowing to the applause which greets her—Madame President, ladies: Really there is so much to tell I don't know where to begin (fluttering her thirty-five pages of typewritten matter), but I have jotted down a few of the most important items. I had great help from a Mrs White—

Member in the rear (joyously)—Oh, was she there? Why, I haven't seen her since I lived in St Paul ten years ago! She was the prettiest thing then! How did she look?

Mrs Jones—She is very nice, but you know she still frizzes—actually frizzes her front bangs, yes, in these days of pompadours!

Long drawn sigh of horror from the assemblage. The president, smiling slightly, raps for order.

Mrs Jones (sorting out her thirty-five pages)—We held our session in the Missouri building—

The president (eagerly)—That is true. It seems to me it would have been only courtesy to let some visiting [illegible] cut [illegible] in its own building. How did that happen?

Mrs Jones explains in detail. After ten minutes of explanation lady near a window tries to raise it, but it [illegible] pinches her thumb and it takes the united endeavors of three neighbors to soothe her emotions and wounded hand.

Member in the rear (interrupting)—That reminds me. Do you know I'm so interested in hearing about Mrs White! Was her husband at the fair with her?

Mrs Jones (expectantly)—No, he went to Buenos Ayres or something.

Member in rear—Then it must be true. I heard they were going to separate. But of course the rest of you don't know them. Do go on, Mrs Jones.

Mrs Jones—The meeting was called to order by the federation president, Mrs Allen, who—

Chorus—What did she wear?

Mrs Jones (animatedly dropping her paper on the table)—If that gown didn't come straight from Paris I'm mistaken. It was a perfect dream—a lilac crepe de chine almost solid with shirrings and lace applique [illegible]. She wore the dearest hat. It was made of the lace and had two long [illegible] plumes on one side. But if that dress was pretty you should have seen the one she wore at the reception given later on. It was cloth of gold with a great trail of velvet nasturtiums from one shoulder around the waist down to the hem. You can imagine (expressive pause). [illegible] a breath of ecstasy from the assemblage.

Lady in the second row—It's easy with his money. I can imagine what it cost. I saw a gown on that order when I was in Paris two years ago.

The president (musing on [illegible]) [illegible] she realizes that the [illegible] must [illegible] cut short on the [illegible] trip which she drags in at every possible chance. Let Mrs Jones proceed, ladies. Her report is so interesting, I'm sure—

Mrs Jones (sorting her thirty-five sheets again)—Her speech was followed by reports from the secretaries of the fifty-one clubs represented, and so I'll give a resume of each.

In the rear—Meanwhile the member in the rear seat is explaining the domestic troubles of the Whites of St Paul to the ten women within [illegible]. Lady with bandaged thumb is telling all those near her how it hurts and that she fears blood poisoning. The president looks out of the window and dreams of the day when she will be federation president and wear gorgeous gowns. The other members are [illegible] in discreet whispers their trials with their servants and how many times the children have had the measles.

Mrs Jones' voice hoarse and face flushed from reading her statistics.

After which we were served with luncheon in the large hall—

Sudden chorus—Did they have anything new in the line of table decorations? Or salads? How many courses?

The president—Excuse me, but I'd like to ask if Mrs Allen had a written speech or spoke extemporaneously?

Member in the sixth row—Yes, and I want to know if that cloth of gold was fastened in the back or on the side.

Mrs Jones (promptly laying aside the ten sheets she has read)—On the side.

The president, oblivious of the fact that there are still twenty-five sheets more—Will some one move a vote of thanks to Mrs Jones for her clear, comprehensive and instructive report? I feel we have enjoyed a treat.

Uproarious applause, amid which Mrs Jones is besieged by the members who want more information on that cloth of gold gown. The meeting stands adjourned.—Chicago News.

Accused of Being a Spy

Elkhart, Indiana, July [illegible].—A letter received Thursday by Mrs Chester [illegible] tells of the arrest in Korea of Mrs C. A. Johnson of Elkhart. She was taken by Japanese, being suspected of being a spy. She writes that her release was effected through the persuasiveness of a Danish sea captain who pointed to her prematurely white hair as evidence of her advanced age, this proving to the Japanese reverence for elderly people.

FIRE DESTROYS THE DRAKE BARN

Alarm Is Sent in a Few Minutes Before Midnight.

HEROIC WORK SAVES HORSE AND CARRIAGE

The Fire Department Arrives Too Late To Save the Building. The Loss Is Estimated at Nearly $800 With Only $150 Insurance—How the Fire Originated Is a Mystery.

A fire of unknown origin destroyed a barn in the rear of the home of William D. Drake at No. 711 Silver street about midnight Thursday night, entailing a loss of $800 with only $150 insurance.

The fire was discovered by Mrs Harvey Davis, a neighbor who gave the alarm. Mr Drake was not at home, he being employed in the yards of the Erie railroad as an operator. Mrs Drake, despite the fact that the roof was enveloped in flames and liable to fall in at any time, ran to the barn, rescued the family horse with much difficulty and also succeeded in pulling out a carriage before assistance came.

The fire department was called out by an alarm from box No. 2[illegible], but the fire had attained such headway that it was impossible for the firemen to check the flames.

The barn had recently been repainted and a buggy shed built together with a corn crib. Nothing was saved outside of the horse and carriage.

Twenty chickens in a hen house near the barn, the property of William Britton, were roasted to death.

The fire started in the haymow, but how is a mystery.

SCHOOL TEACHERS MAY CONTRIBUTE TO A FUND

To Assist in Capture of the Murderer of Miss Schaefer

Indianapolis, Ind., July 2[illegible].—The school teachers of Indiana will probably be called on to contribute to a big fund to be offered as a reward for the capture and conviction of the murderer of Catherine Schaefer, the Latin teacher at Bedford, Indiana, last winter. State Superintendent of Public Instruction Fassett A. Cotton Thursday sent a letter to Mayor J. Hixon Smith of Bedford asking him if such a fund would be satisfactory and if the authorities at Bedford still believe there is a chance to find the murderer.

The suggestion that the teachers raise the fund was made by Superintendent Stepp of Lawrence county, a friend of the murdered girl, and it has been enthusiastically received. Mayor Smith and others at Bedford advise strongly against raising the fund and it is likely that Mr Cotton will take the matter up.

There are 16,000 teachers in the state and it is thought a reward of $2,000 can be raised without much trouble.

THE CONDITION OF WHEAT CROP

Report Shows It Is Damaged Thirty Per Cent

OHIO'S YIELD HALF AS MUCH AS LAST YEAR

Farmers Will Sell Freely and Millers Will Import the Product in Large Quantities. Clover Seed Promises Fair Result. This Report Is Taken By [illegible]

Toledo, Ohio, July [illegible].—C. A. King & Company's crop report shows that replies from [illegible] give the condition of the wheat crop about thirty per cent damaged. The report is [illegible]

Kansas wheat crop has been damaged [illegible] this month [illegible] as much as Michigan [illegible] shows about fifty per cent damage [illegible] wheat coming [illegible] raising [illegible] and twenty-five per cent. Missouri reports about ten per cent damage [illegible] Ohio and Indiana [illegible] five per cent damage mostly by [illegible] Illinois only [illegible] Michigan [illegible] quality will be [illegible] out [illegible] of July with favorable weather. A trifle over half the farmers are inclined to sell freely. Most mills will import considerable wheat. Ohio, Indiana and Michigan now expect only half as much as the short crop last year. Illinois [illegible] half more and Missouri third more. Kansas may secure a quarter less than its 1903 large crop. Clover seed promises fair but late. This is result of 3,152 reports received by C. A. King & Company, the [illegible] their twenty-fourth annual [illegible] report.

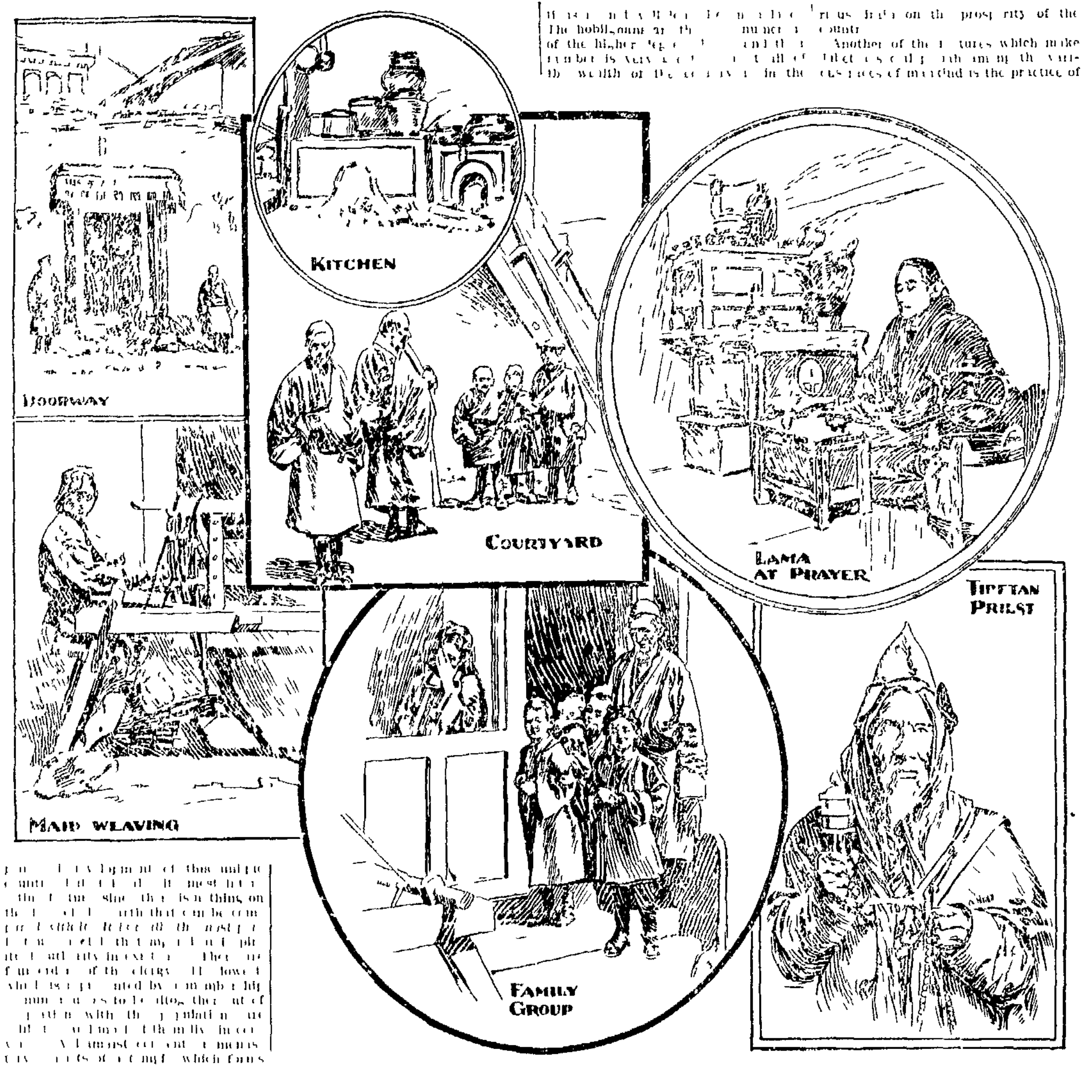
IN THE HEART OF TIBET—THE FORBIDDEN LAND

WHATEVER [illegible]

[illegible]

Younghusband [illegible]

[illegible]



FAMILIAR TIBETAN HOME SCENES.

[illegible] declared by subsequent investigators to exist only as an exception, but according to the report of the Younghusband expedition the practice is not only general but is enjoined both by [illegible] and public sentiment. It is [illegible] that this custom, together with the voluntary celibacy of upward of [illegible] of the population, has a [illegible] influence on the restriction of [illegible] population. It explains how it is that for centuries the population of this hidden country has neither increased nor diminished.

Under such social conditions it is difficult to speak of Tibetan domestic life. The [illegible] of the subordinate husbands [illegible] easy to define, but their standing in the household is not unlike that of [illegible] sons, since the actual husband [illegible] of everything and the responsible head of the family. Tibetan dwellings [illegible] two or three stories in height [illegible] of a school of architecture which [illegible] be found in no other country. To the Tibetan householder the proper adornment of the main entrance to his dwelling is a subject of much [illegible]. The doors are usually ornamented with paintings, a favorite [illegible]. The exterior walls are also painted frequently in animal designs. A popular decoration, judging from its frequent recurrence, is a scene depicting an elephant [illegible] a mythical snow lion with bright green tail and mane. The doorway opens into a courtyard round which are the stables and cattle stalls, and a stairway leads up to the first floor, where the family lives. The rooms on the first floor not used for [illegible] are devoted to the storing of grain and fodder. If the winter is unusually severe the family takes up temporary quarters with the animals. In the summer, which is particularly hot in Tibet, the family sleeps on the roof under a shelter made of poplar boughs.

The Tibetan kitchen is the most carefully arranged spot in the house. The cooking utensils are made of copper and are kept in scrupulous order. As an evidence that these curious Asiatics carry their originality even to the making of tea, this Tibetan recipe is given:

"Boil a teacupful of tea in three pints of water for ten minutes with a heaped dessertspoonful of soda. Put the infusion into the churn with one pound of butter and a small teaspoonful of salt. Churn until as thick as cream."

It is an error to assume that all parts of Tibet are held in equal seclusion and that foreigners are unwelcome everywhere. At Sining, a lively market town on the eastern frontier, Europeans have always been welcomed and their goods may be exposed for sale without molestation. It is only when the infidel foreign devil undertakes to penetrate the interior, and more especially when he sets his adventurous foot toward the holy city of Lassa, that he is met with hostility. If Colonel Younghusband and his escort succeed in opening this hitherto impenetrable region to the outside world they will accomplish one of the most difficult undertakings of the age.

How Presidential Candidates Await the Election

NOW that the bustle and preliminary hub bub of the presidential nominations are over the candidates have nothing to do—theoretically that is—but fold their arms and wait having [illegible] themselves in the hands of [illegible] however many incitements [illegible] calculated to stimulate a presidential candidate's activity—that is [illegible] Most of them are [illegible] to a certain extent [illegible] is well It would be about [illegible] of Mr Roosevelt's temperamental activity to remain passive [illegible] of his friends as it would [illegible] his opponent in an attitude of mere expectancy his keen perceptive [illegible] at perfect rest his store of [illegible] sources untouched

The picturesque Long Island village of Oyster Bay has for many summers [illegible] gives welcome shelter to the [illegible] The president's modest [illegible] known as Sagamore Hill so termed from the rather lofty knoll on which [illegible] is built is about two miles from the postoffice of Oyster Bay [illegible] has business with the [illegible] of Sagamore Hill need hesitate [illegible] his letter will not be [illegible] residence though unpretentious [illegible] to slight architectural distinction is modern in its equipment and suggestive of great comfort It is a rather straggling [illegible] cottage built of brick [illegible] and bearing the evidences of numerous additions The approach [illegible] Sagamore Hill is its redeeming feature—quite sufficient in fact to counterbalance all defects It is over a macadamized roadway along the bay shore and afterward by an easy ascent through a grove of [illegible] and [illegible] On the facade of the [illegible] a pair of [illegible] and [illegible] remind the visitor of the president's [illegible] for the chase and the big [illegible] reception hall is suggestive of the entrance to a prosperous taxidermist's so lavish is the display of [illegible] fauna To add to the illusion [illegible] with panther [illegible] and in the corner stands a [illegible]

rack [illegible] of [illegible] twenty four [illegible]

There will be [illegible] the summer [illegible] with them [illegible] purpose of [illegible] sufficient to insure that the Roosevelt youngsters do not [illegible] to that model type of children [illegible] should be seen and not heard [illegible] long before the [illegible] a hermit [illegible] the village [illegible] permit [illegible] young [illegible] is the [illegible] rural philosopher who [illegible] of the president [illegible] playin with the [illegible] girls has to keep [illegible] but when he's playin with the kids them fellers don't [illegible] to show [illegible]

There is nothing classic about Esopus except the name and it is not easy to [illegible] an analogy between this sleepy [illegible] hamlet and the [illegible] who [illegible] the Rome of so long ago It [illegible] is Oyster Bay in its opportunities for cultivating a [illegible] existence Until now when the [illegible] of a world wide notoriety [illegible] it was the most inconspicuous of the Empire State's hidden [illegible]

ways For the present however [illegible] of solitude is [illegible] has been discovered

After Judge Parker's [illegible] came a reasonable probability the outside world began to demand a little information concerning the [illegible] of Esopus's chief citizen Of course the village was still too [illegible] to make much account of its [illegible] but [illegible] to feel an interest in matters [illegible] road authorities for instance with thrifty prescience ordered a new [illegible] and it will be brought in sections from Kingston and put to [illegible] spot A new hotel—there is no old one —is also contracted for and that fact indicates more than anything [illegible] that Esopus will become a [illegible] and that there will be [illegible] plenty of them Not to indulge in too much [illegible] there have already [illegible]

Rosemount Judge Parker's estate in Ulster county is a veritable farm so that when the committee came [illegible] the official tidings of his nomination he may be [illegible] that [illegible] of [illegible] for [illegible] that the judge is [illegible] farmer [illegible] to his [illegible] who is the wife [illegible] and must be [illegible] as absolutely correct in her statement he spends all the forenoons while the family is [illegible] in looking after the [illegible] tending the stock and assisting [illegible] He rises at daybreak [illegible] a plunge off the dock [illegible] Hudson which forms the eastern [illegible] of his farm Before he [illegible] rather hearty breakfast he takes a stiff [illegible] across country He [illegible] his horse [illegible] himself upright [illegible] his steed go full speed [illegible]

When the Democratic candidate has had enough of farming or when there [illegible] are other diversions to which he may resort without sacrificing either time or dignity If he is inclined to a closer study of nature [illegible] own premises afford he may go to John Burroughs who is his not far away neighbor and become wiser concerning the [illegible] and possibly [illegible] of the interesting creatures that [illegible] in the presence of that [illegible] naturalist and philosopher If he is experiencing a temporary spiritual apathy he may betake himself to the recently [illegible] Monastery of the Holy Cross which is close at hand and be comforted by the kindly ministrations of Father Huntington and his associates If he prefer to receive such benefit from the hands of the secular clergy he may ride eight miles across country to Kingston and call upon his much respected son in law Rev Charles Mercer Hall who when quite a young ecclesiastic had a [illegible] pretty taste for asceticism But the charm of pretty Miss Bertha Parker [illegible] of the cloister

Both candidates are especially fortunate in the possession of all this vigor and robust [illegible] for the [illegible] The American people—[illegible] determined [illegible] what is best—demand that their executive shall be the possessor of a brilliant mental equipment but it must be supplemented [illegible]

Alaska Now a Land of Cheerful Possibilities

THE region now being opened by the building of the Alaska Central railroad is probably the richest and most fertile undeveloped section of the world The original [illegible] established the fact that a country of surprising resources awaited exploitation and subsequent investigation [illegible] it apparent that half has not been told This portion of Alaska [illegible] the parallel with northern [illegible] there is no part of Norway [illegible] Denmark that equal it in [illegible] advantages

An all American railway to the interior of Alaska starting from a harbor [illegible] open the year round has been the dream of many an American capitalist It was in the [illegible] that the project assumed [illegible] character The success of the White Pass railroad was [illegible] That road is a [illegible] gauge only 100 miles long [illegible] the Pacific at Skagway with [illegible] Yukon at White Horse It [illegible] unique record of financial [illegible] handed down in railroad [illegible] It cost $4 000 000 to build and

It earned $4 000 000 the [illegible] year Since then it has [illegible] per cent [illegible] With such [illegible] to stimulate them [illegible] the strong [illegible] that the new [illegible] would prove richer even than the route of the White Pass The promoters of the [illegible] In April 1903 the steamship Santa Ana was [illegible] and in due time [illegible] new port [illegible] On [illegible] force of [illegible] began to build the road The starting point was in the heart of a primeval forest The name [illegible] was at once given to [illegible] in honor of the great secretary [illegible] the purchase of Alaska by the United States [illegible] settlements scattered [illegible] within [illegible] miles of the [illegible] town [illegible] pulled up [illegible] themselves [illegible] Thus the [illegible] considerable population from the beginning [illegible] 1 000 [illegible]

sons had camped there and it is now [illegible] that in a short time its population will exceed that of Nome which has about 20 000 On [illegible] year ago Seward was a wild looking spot covered with big trees dense underbrush and rocks Today it is a thriving city [illegible] to such rapid multiplication of its population as to make the efforts of [illegible] of little avail Four hundred houses numerous restaurants and hotels and a good sized theater have been built and many more buildings are in process of erection There is an almost frantic demand for building material of all kinds and enough transportation cannot at present be secured to supply it The wharfs in Seattle Portland and Tacoma are piled high with merchandise of every description consigned to Seward and every outgoing steamer for Resurrection bay is packed to its utmost capacity with northbound seekers of fortune

Nor does it appear to be gold alone that is now attracting the remarkable immigration to [illegible] Besides the gold mines which are [illegible] only in the [illegible] stage of their development—[illegible] of copper are have been found about [illegible] north of Lake [illegible] More wonderful still there have been discovered near Resurrection bay extensive deposits of tin [illegible] of experts to whom samples of this ore have been submitted [illegible] the metal [illegible] of the most noted mines [illegible] The possession of an unlimited supply of tin of good quality would mean [illegible] discovery of a [illegible] further evidence of the [illegible] of nature displayed in this [illegible] forsaken land [illegible] the discovery of a vast [illegible] field in the Katalla region The Standard Oil company has become convinced of the value of this [illegible] already on the ground [illegible] force of [illegible] of machinery

The gold fever is still [illegible] frequent [illegible] This [illegible] rush to the White Horse [illegible] and more than a thousand [illegible] the [illegible] more [illegible] The [illegible] is full [illegible] of [illegible] and dogs [illegible] tion [illegible] by the [illegible] of excellent [illegible] the

Sushitna river is [illegible] feet in thickness The [illegible] of a semianthracite nature [illegible] the [illegible] of the coal field already [illegible] in the hands of Pennsylvania capitalists [illegible] will be worked [illegible] soon as railroad facilities are available

The timber resources of [illegible] Alaska are similar to those of Washington [illegible] miles north of Resurrection bay there is a growth of fir [illegible] precisely like that of western Oregon The mountains are covered with this timber to an altitude of 1 600 feet [illegible] become smaller but the [illegible] larger than those [illegible] in Michigan [illegible] and Minnesota Many of the spruce [illegible] around Resurrection bay are three feet [illegible] in diameter

[illegible] mention of Alaska [illegible] child [illegible] the [illegible] of warm weather subjects [illegible] Now however [illegible] to [illegible] that [illegible] similar to that [illegible] of the [illegible] part [illegible]

geographical location the southern portion of Alaska is warmed by the Japan current precisely as the gulf stream moderates the temperature of the country bordering on the North sea Besides the warm winds from the Pacific come up the broad valley of the Sushitna and are diffused over the stretch from the Alaska range on the west to Mount St Elias on the east The temperature on the lower Sushitna seldom falls below zero and for weeks at a time in winter it ranges from 40 to [illegible] above The summer season is delightful being like that of western Washington but the days are longer

The watershed of the Sushitna river drains a country as large as the states of Ohio Indiana and Illinois Agricultural and grazing lands are abundant The soil is a rich loam In many places the grass will [illegible] grow luxuriantly sometimes as high as a horse's shoulders [illegible] almost all kinds are [illegible] found everywhere As is the case in other northern countries vegetables and small fruits grown in this part of Alaska are of superior quality Visitors to the Sushitna country have [illegible] of [illegible] where days have eighteen hours of sunshine

VICTORY FOR THE STRIKERS

Stock Yards Strike Settled at a Tri-Sided Conference.

TANGLE TO BE STRAIGHTENED BY AN ARBITRATION BOARD

All Employes to Be Taken Back Within Forty-five Days—Result Brought About by the Stand Taken by the Allied Trades Unions—Text of the Agreement

Chicago, July 21—At a conference between representatives of the packers, the officials of the meat cutters union and representatives of all the allied trades employed at the stock yards, the great strike of packing house employes was officially declared at an end The whole controversy will be submitted to a board of arbitration, both sides agreeing to abide by whatever decision this board may reach Pending the decision of the arbitration the men will be taken back to work as rapidly as possible by the packers and it is agreed by the packers that all the old employes are to be reinstated within 45 days after work is resumed If any of the former employes are still unemployed at the expiration of that time such persons are to have the privilege of submitting their cases to arbitration board for settlement

The agreement entered into provides for a board of arbitration to be selected as follows One representative of the packing companies one representative of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America these two to elect a third member The two first named shall meet within 48 hours after resumption of work and proceed to elect the third member When the third member has been elected the three shall meet daily until the final conclusion has been reached and the award made

The strikers will return to work as soon as they can be notified of the peaceable adjustment of the trouble and it is expected that by Friday morning everything will be in normal shape at all the plants in the different cities where the employes were on strike Half an hour after the decision had been reached to arbitrate M J Donnelly the strike leader had got into communication by long distance telephone with the leaders of the [illegible] in outside cities and had notified them that a satisfactory settlement had been reached and directed the strikers to return to work as soon as possible

The settlement of the difficulty by arbitration was brought about by the allied craft at the stock yards who would have become involved in the controversy had it continued much longer The representatives of these unions which represent about 14 000 men got together and sent a final appeal to the packers asking for a three sided conference between the packers the strikers and themselves In a final effort to get both sides of the controversy together again and arrange some sort of agreement which would prevent the strike spreading to the affiliated unions To this appeal the allied trades unions received a favorable response from the packers and the trisided conference was the result

One of General Gordon's Stories

The late Confederate General John B Gordon often related with relish a grimly humorous incident of the battle at Appomattox says the Atlanta Journal

General Gordon said that when the end came he ordered his chief aid to take a flag of truce to the Union commander

"We have no flag sir" said the aid

"Take your handkerchief and tie it to a stick"

"I have no handkerchief general"

"Tear off your shirt then"

"There is not a white shirt in the army general I have a flannel one but it's far from white"

VICTIMS OF HOT WEATHER

Another Death and Several Prostrations Are Reported.

HOCKING VALLEY EMPLOYE SUCCUMBS TO THE HEAT

Section Man at LaRue Found Lying Upon the Track and Is Rescued by a Companion--The Mercury in the Official Thermometer Shoots Skyward Weather Bureau Besieged

The torrid weather is causing much suffering. Another death has resulted and several prostrations are reported.

The five weeks old son of Mr and Mrs Charles Dietz of east Farming street died at 7 o'clock Monday evening. Death was due to infantile marasmus, the contributing cause being the intense heat. Interment was made in the Marion cemetery Tuesday afternoon.

J J Bretley, a section hand on the Hocking Valley, was stricken by the heat while at work Monday afternoon. His condition is serious.

From all parts of the city reports are coming into the authorities of people having become slightly overcome by the heat but few cases have been serious.

At LaRue John Cramer, a Big Four section hand, was overcome by the heat Monday afternoon and fell striking his head on the rails inflicting a bad gash. A fellow workman saw Cramer lying on the track, he having been working some distance from the section gang, and running to his rescue pulled him off barely in time to prevent his being killed by a rapidly approaching passenger train. Cramer is married. His condition is improved.

While enroute to his home at La Rue Monday evening Edward Toner was overcome by the heat on Vine street and fell prostrate to the sidewalk injuring his head badly.

The local weather bureau is besieged every hour in the day by people anxious to know what the weatherman is doing. Monday afternoon old Sol sent down his rays with a fierceness that was almost unbearable to those who had to be where there was no shade. The mercury in the official thermometer shot up to ninety three and a half degrees.

The weather record for July this year far outclasses the record made for the corresponding month a year ago as regards torridity. The highest point registered by the mercury in the local weather bureau last July was seventy three. The highest made so far this year was ninety four last Sunday.

The highest temperature for July 1902 was ninety degrees and for 1901 it was ninety four degrees.

Y M C A WORK.

School Department Enrolled More Students Than Eight Universities

The Y M C A recently concluded its international examinations and received full reports of its educational work. The students the past year number 32,344 in the principal branches in North America—a larger number than is enrolled in the eight largest universities. This is an increase of nearly 2,000 in the association's enrollment. There were 147 different subjects. These association schools held mostly at night have been making a steady advance. They have secured the best teachers obtainable and the classes run from the simpler studies for working boys to technical subjects such as steam, mechanical and electrical engineering, automobile handling, design and construction and textile and other forms of industrial design. A large proportion of the students are men and apprentices from the skilled trades. Association evening law schools have been authorized by Ohio and Massachusetts legislatures to grant the degree of LL B to the graduating men who are taking the highest test in the state bar examinations.

The appreciation of the men for these classes may be seen from figures showing the amount paid for tuition, which last year was $118,240, and the year previous $84,086, a tuition fee of [illegible] per man in addition to the membership fees of the association. The associations of North America expended $271,000 for these classes and other features of education work during the year.

Forty per cent increase is noted in the enrollment of railroad men, many of whom take the courses in air brakes and steam engineering, firing, time cards and other subjects related to their business. A class for apprentices for brick masons and contractors is conducted at Detroit, the employers paying for the tuition of their men.

HOW JAPAN TAKES THE WAR

No Warlike Scenes In Streets Nor Excitement Among Business Men

An interesting picture of conditions in Japan is afforded by a communication from the Japanese manager of the [illegible] Shogyo Zasshi published at Tokyo recently received by the department of commerce and labor, says Harper's Weekly.

Commenting upon trade and financial conditions in the Japanese empire the writer says:

When the Russo-Japanese negotiations were broken off and the hostilities were opened between these two powers we feared that a great panic would occur in our economic world and our commerce and industry would be upset to a large extent, the whole energy of the people being concentrated on the war. But this turned out to be a false fear. The war does not so much affect our trade as we expected; transactions are done very smoothly; stocks which suffered from a fall for a short time have risen again to their prices and factories enjoy their usual profit. Nor does it make our people so greatly excited as you may think, though we Japanese pride ourselves on being the most patriotic nation on earth. At home our conversations are as merry and innocent as ever, and in the street we see nothing warlike except noisy newsboys delivering specials of happy tidings in the form of our brilliant victories both on land and sea. Business men and laborers are calmly attending to their own tasks and there is no excitement among them.

Renting Mansions For a Night

The latest fashion in London is to give balls and parties in houses hired for the evening, says a cable dispatch from the British capital. The idea was started by Lord Temple who let his beautiful house Chandos House in Cavendish square to a well known American millionaire for $500, the giver of the party undertaking to leave the house in perfect order. Lord Temple's example has now been followed by Mr and Mrs Lowther who have let their house to Mrs Flower, Lord Battersea's sister in law, for a ball. Mrs Flower, like all the Battersea family, is rich and has paid $1,000 for the privilege of giving her dance at Lowther lodge.

Besieged on a Chimney

James Gill, the steeplejack who is defying the police from the top of Sugar Island chimney [illegible] England, recently completed a fortnight's siege and to celebrate the event gave a firework display from the steel, says the London Telegraph. He is visited by crowds of people who admire his bravado and has received congratulations from different parts of England. The police take the occurrence quite coolly and are apparently more amused than chagrined at his act.

Too Grasping

"I had a great dream the other night. I dreamed I met a man who offered to cut me a pound slice of radium."

"Whew! It's worth a million an ounce."

"That's right. 'What a slice?' he says to me. 'Yes,' I answered him. But I was too grasping."

"How was that?"

"I woke up just as I asked him to cut it thicker."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"NO HAT" CRUSADE

English Physical Culturists Would Abolish Headgear Altogether

At the meeting of the Leeds physical culturists the other day in England the honorable secretary, Mr Harry Kremnitz, an engineer by profession, brought forward his proposal regarding the no hat crusade. He said he introduced this policy from a hygienic point of view and believed strongly that the continued use of headgear with little or no ventilation was detrimental to the growth of the hair, says the London Telegraph. It was also to a great extent an act of [illegible]ness into which we had fallen unconsciously. The use of hats should not only be discontinued in mills, offices, warehouses, workrooms, theaters, [illegible] and public halls, but should be abolished altogether.

He (Mr Kremnitz) had no doubt others had gone hatless for a considerable period before this proposal was made, but he now desired the physical culturists to set an example and to abolish their headgear entirely. He allowed, however, one exception, and that was for persons with a thin or bald head when it was very cold. A cloth hat might be then worn as a protection. The present hat no doubt was a relic of olden times when helmets were worn to protect the head in battle. Could anyone imagine a more unsightly and uncomfortable article than a top hat? He challenged anybody to bring forth a single advantage the top hat offered. The cap so universally worn was too warm and heavy and impeded the growth of the hair. Young children's hair would grow strong in a very short time if their heads were left uncovered. There was no possible doubt that the fresh air admitted to the head prevented grey hairs and baldness. Mr Kremnitz further urged the adoption of sandals in dry weather. These he particularly recommended for the use of the poorer classes, as he considered that bad and old wornout boots were a source of disease.

The proposal was seconded by Miss G Jenkin and was generally indorsed, but in London, adds the correspondent, it is meeting with some show of opposition and ridicule.

GREAT OCEAN HIGHWAYS

Panama Canal Will Create a New World's Street of the Seas

The completion of the new Panama canal will have some marked effects upon the great lanes of ocean travel. Vessels have to be sure for years come into Panama and Colon for the transshipment of their freight across the Isthmus by rail. The effect of the opening of the new canal can be [illegible] says the London [illegible] the substitution of a street [illegible] a convenient place for crossing [illegible] for a more or less uncertain ford. Such a bridge attracts wagon travel. The canal will draw toward it the commercial highways of the hemisphere.

Vessels which are operated by steam can pursue an almost unvarying line. Their managers accordingly prescribe courses between various ports known as lanes over which practically all the shipping moves. In case of accident down the vessel is much sooner picked up on a lane than in less frequented parts of the sea. Moreover, too, derelicts and other obstructions may be more carefully hunted and watched on the highly traveled courses.

There is usually [illegible] a few [illegible] the direction of [illegible] On the great lines there [illegible] two for passenger [illegible] and two for freighters.

Food for Hope in the Arbitration Agreements.

The Anglo-German arbitration agreement which was signed by Lord Lansdowne and the German ambassador to Great Britain in London the other day is a practical duplicate of the arbitration agreements which have been made between England on one hand and France, Italy and Spain on the other during the past year. It provides for arbitration of any differences of a legal nature which may arise out of divergent interpretations of existing treaties. Doubtless the agreement can be relied upon to tend toward the maintenance of peace between England and Germany in the future. That it absolutely does away with the possibility of war between these two countries, however, is far from apparent.

As was the case with the Anglo-French, the Anglo-Italian and the Anglo-Spanish arbitration agreements of the past few months, Edward VII seems to have been the moving spirit in bringing the efforts toward the adoption of an Anglo-German arbitration agreement to a successful conclusion. The English king has already established quite a record as a peace preserver. Under his guidance England in an effort toward peace has given much of material things and received a little of the same sort of commodity in return. The England of the present day is apt to remind the cynical of that comfortable portly person of commercial tendencies who is quite satisfied with his lot and almost abnormally anxious to avoid any conflict with a [illegible] power which might affect his present prosperity. For the present Edward's policy of conciliation seems to be a success. Later some power crowded at home and in need of room, or even merely and needlessly ambitious for territory, may make up its mind to take some of England's colonial territory. It is then that the first real test of Edward's scheme of international arbitration agreements will come.

The world's one reason for hoping for something more than a mere temporary benefit from the campaign which England has started toward international arbitration is to be found in the great and growing discontent of the old world at those terrible burdens which their systems of military conscription have forced upon them during the past few decades. Europeans of all classes are growing more and more tired of the great armaments of the present day. Under the influence of the increased taxation and the other burdens which conscription has forced upon the people of the old world practically all of the continental governments have witnessed an enormous drift toward discontent and even socialism among their peoples during the past few decades. In England there is no system of conscription and very little socialism. If the European armaments of the present day are to be increased or even continued however many Englishmen are afraid that their own country will be driven to conscription in the near future.

It is barely possible that the rulers of the old world in the near future will show courage enough to allow them to appreciate and profit from the lessons of the present and reduce their countries' armaments to more reasonable dimensions than they have been limited to for many years. Upon the present European discontent at large military establishments rests the one great chance that Edward's arbitration propaganda will exercise a great and permanent influence on the future history of the world.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

WILD FLOWER FARMS

Miss Anderson Suggests Them as an Occupation For College Girls

Wild flower farms for college girls. It is a pretty idea and one that Miss Mary Perl Anderson considers entirely feasible and a noble [illegible] at least fairly profitable, says the New York Tribune.

Miss Anderson is now the instructor in botany at Mount Holyoke. In common with many other botanists and flower lovers Miss Anderson is alarmed at the threatened destruction of many species of wild flowers. The arbutus and fringed gentian especially, two flowers of unusual beauty found nowhere in the world outside of America, are in danger of speedy extermination. The cardinal flower can live only in lonely haunts. Its pile of scarlet flame is irresistible. The hepatica, the lady's slipper, the ginseng and the Jack in the pulpit are vanishing rapidly.

The two great sources of danger are the gathering of wild flowers for sale and the supplying of vast quantities of them to city schools for nature study. The latter is a new danger and one that the flower lovers themselves do not wish to see abandoned, only regulated. They wish to have the city children see and love the flowers. In this emergency Miss Anderson suggests flower farms for college girls.

She cites the well known president of the Christmas tree farm of Maine. Some years ago several acres of land covered with balsam fir in Maine were worthless. They were actually not taxed because they yielded no income. To-day the land [illegible] the manipulation of the [illegible] Maine farmer yields [illegible] a year through the [illegible] trade. The farmer [illegible] the trees, preserving them, thinning, pruning and preventing devastation.

Many college graduates, says Miss Anderson, living in country towns would be glad to reside at home after graduation could they see any way to make a little money there. The transplanting and cultivation of the plants in their own habitat she declares could be made to yield a steady income through the season and in addition would preserve species instead of exterminating them and foster the love of plants.

The sand barren, the peat bog and even the stagnant pool, she says, might be made to yield a wealth of flowers with an economic and educational and an aesthetic value.

SPECIAL POLICE FOR CUPID

Park Superintendent's Plan to Regulate Love Making

Lovers [illegible] persist in occupying the benches in McCall [illegible] at Muncie, Ind, to the offense of others visiting the place that the superintendent of the city parks has issued that a special police officer be appointed to patrol the park at night and break up love making, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"I have no personal objection to the [illegible] habit," said Superintendent Crabbs in a speech to the city council, "but I believe the tendency is demoralizing and I know it is objectionable to the majority of people frequenting the park. Already I have become [illegible] that they pay no attention when I tell them to break away, and the other night the only way I could get them to go was to tell them that the Board contained in the park had broken loose. Another time when I interfered with two young [illegible] the young man [illegible] against me and threatened [illegible] if I didn't [illegible] That's the reason I think the park needs a policeman."

A terrible nice thing about a girl's being fat is how close she can sit to a man when they go buggy riding.

GRAND ARMY REUNION

Features of National Encampment at Boston.

ILLUMINATION TO BE GORGEOUS

Over 35,000 Lights Will Be Utilized In the Electrical Display—Many Girls to Participate In Portrayal of a "Living Flag"—Unique Automobile Ride For the Veterans

According to Comrade W A Weatherbee who has in charge all arrangements for the electrical illumination during the national G A R encampment at Boston next month it will be the most gorgeous lighting display ever seen in New England.

The devices, the arrangements and the detailed effects are to be kept profound secrets and sprung, or rather, turned on as a big surprise. Mr Weatherbee who chatted with a Boston Herald man the other day said:

"Everything is moving along with the most wonderful celerity. There are no hitches in the arrangements and I feel justified in saying that the illumination both in extent and in effect will be the greatest ever seen in Boston. Our contract with the Edison company will call for about 35,000 incandescent lights. The main portion of the display will be in and about the Public Garden which we hope to make a sunburst of glory. Then we shall illuminate portions of Commonwealth avenue, Arlington street and sections of the Common.

"We expect to have the entire route of parade a solid mass of decorations and I have detailed special men to interview every person who owns property or rents property along the route, asking them to decorate. This will be more effective than a circular addressed to the people, and the men who call will offer suggestions to each decorator so that a harmonious effect may be obtained. We estimate that there will be from 25,000 to 30,000 men in line and as many more who will attend the encampment who will not march."

One of the interesting features in connection with the Grand Army parade in Boston will be that of the living flag. Its composition requires the presence of nearly 2,200 children from the several schools of the city. They will be arranged in double rows clad in colored caps and capes representing the several red and white stripes and the blue field of the flag. They form a picture grand and inspiring beyond description. Arrangements for the feature have been placed in charge of Mrs Lue Stuart Wadsworth, past national patriotic instructor of the Woman's Relief corps.

The children will be divided into two sections of 1,100 each and each section will sing alternately, thus insuring constant singing during the parade. James M McLaughlin, director of music in the Boston schools, will be the musical conductor for this occasion.

An automobile parade will be one of the features of the Grand Army encampment, says the Boston correspondent of the Washington Post.

This is not to be simply a long line of horseless carriages for the delegates to look at, but the latter are to be invited to step in and take a seat. They will then be taken on a ride over one of the most historical routes that could be found in the United States. It will follow out the famous ride of Paul Revere. From within sight of the tower of the Old North church—from which the famous rider received his signal—and from within sight of the Bunker Hill monument the party will move out on the old Bay road, now known as Massachusetts avenue.

Over the Charles river into Cambridge the visitors will be taken past Harvard college and the old Washington elm, where Washington assumed command of the army of the revolution. Here also will be seen the old Longfellow home and the house where James Russell Lowell lived.

Over one of the finest roads in the country they will reach Lexington, where they will see the old Monroe tavern, which is rich in historical lore. Here is where Earl Percy with his reenforcements was enabled to hold back the American patriots while he converted the tavern into a hospital. In the barroom is to be seen a hole made by a British musket ball. Here also is a chair in which Washington sat while on his visit to Lexington in 1789.

Six miles beyond Lexington the visitors will arrive at Concord, also rich in its historical associations. Some of the superstitious people of Concord fully believe that the soldiers of Concord will be called out for actual war service April 19 1947.

To form some idea of the length of this automobile parade it will only be necessary to reflect that 1,000 or 1,600 visitors will be carried in the line. The number of automobiles necessary to make this procession will be large. The line will be very long. As they start they will diverge, one half pursuing one route and the other half another, meeting at a point on the route, probably Concord, each passing in review before the other section. It is estimated that there will be over 700 automobiles in this procession.

Virtue doesn't get its own reward unless it is advertised. [illegible]

Writes From Seabright of the [illegible] Man—We Are Becoming So English Don't-Cher-Know—A Small Grist of Fashion Talk

HERE or in any other place give me the out-of-doors man the man who is fond of automobiles, yachts and such. He isn't always the richest man, although of course, automobiles and yacht cost money, but he is the man who knows how to live and how to spend his money.

There are plenty of rich men who stick in New York all summer and whose one idea of happiness consists in going nightly to an expensive restaurant and there stuffing themselves — I am sorry to use an inelegant word but I can't help it — and there stuffing themselves until their countenances take on the hue of the eggplant. By day there fashionable lounge in the deepest chairs of their clubs except when they venture forth on a delicate amble down the avenue or better still a gentle trot from one clubhouse to the other in a hansom, an automobile is too rapid for them. When old age comes to them—which it actually does sometimes just to prove that the fly of [illegible] is not past—it finds them [illegible] under the eyelids wheezy of breath and so gouty that life [illegible] long misery of remorse.

They lounged in the deepest chairs

Happily American men are growing [illegible] and they mostly belong to the older generation. Foreigners and especially Englishmen used to be able to say with some [illegible] of truth that Americans did not know how to live—that we hated fresh air, that we ate poor food and that we only lived to make money. Nowadays we are as nearly English as we can be and by English I mean that we are acquiring the best traits of the English, their fine athletic physique, their love of country homes and out of door sport. The up to date young man thinks of something besides money making, although he thinks of that too. He has his yacht, his automobile or his stable of horses. He is a good wrestler, a good sailor, a good all round athlete. He has his home in the country and his house in town which he occupies the lesser part of the time and [illegible] from [illegible] suffering [illegible] to help him by keeping his [illegible]

The American Girl

The same is true of the American girl. She [illegible] but at the same time well [illegible] physically. The [illegible] should [illegible] which is [illegible] coming [illegible] during the [illegible] and the [illegible] both [illegible] healthy [illegible] time [illegible] young [illegible] her [illegible] swim [illegible] better still [illegible] And [illegible] for the first [illegible] summer and skating in the winter to bring the flush of health to her cheek.

I heard the other day of a woman who is making quite [illegible] a living as a beauty expert. Nothing extraordinary in that you will say. No, of course not, many hundreds of women make their living that way. But this one is a beauty expert for children. She [illegible] principle that a [illegible] of prevention is worth a pound of cure and that by the way is a pretty good rule to live up to.

She has a large clientele and visits each home regularly [illegible] mothers who realize what little [illegible] in childhood mean in later years value her services greatly. For instance the [illegible] of the Browns and inspects the Brown children.

"Dorothy is going to have the homeliest [illegible]" complains the mother.

They stand right out from her head. I am sure I can't imagine what is the matter.

Questioning and inspection bring out the fact that Dorothy's nurse has been [illegible] tying the heavy silk [illegible] of her hood back of the child's delicate ears all winter long and that is the result of her carelessness. The beauty doctor lectures the maid [illegible] and makes a little cap out of tapes which worn continually ought to counteract during the summer months the evil which has been done.

A STUNNING SUMMER WRAP.

This stunning wrap is of white taffeta trimmed with rows of [illegible] work [illegible] A [illegible] effect is gained with puffed white silk caught at the collar with ribbon bows. A [illegible] hat with lace ruffles adorned with a bunch of pink roses completes the costume.

Common Sense Methods

She [illegible] mother not to [illegible] that bad tooth of [illegible] pulled unless [illegible] the corresponding tooth on the other side pulled also. Result is she prevents [illegible] a mouthful of teeth from going crooked or tipping to [illegible] the vacant space on one side. By the way this is [illegible] that [illegible] the mother [illegible] supposedly sensible [illegible] guilty of [illegible] In the [illegible] of the big dentist specialists who regulate teeth later on in life to the tune of several hundred dollars [illegible]

The beauty specialist removes painlessly tiny moles. She teaches Miss [illegible] how to clean [illegible] little complexion every night before retiring. This is done with [illegible] and warm water. The child is also taught to take a proper [illegible] in rubbing a very little cold cream into the pores [illegible] and then She [illegible] the hands and attends also to the little feet even to selecting the child's shoes. In many cases she [illegible] the [illegible] for each child [illegible] own experience of the needs of certain constitutions and the child's general appearance. She shampoos and [illegible] the child's hair and [illegible] how to brush and care for its [illegible] teeth.

Altogether in nine [illegible] out of ten she makes out of what would probably be a homely little one an attractive [illegible] not pretty child.

While I am on the subject of the different ways women have of earning their living [illegible] scheme of [illegible] bureau of information [illegible] strangers [illegible] New York. Many women [illegible] come to New York [illegible] if they only knew [illegible] friend [illegible] the best shops for the [illegible] the [illegible] plays at [illegible] the places of [illegible] for [illegible] My acquaintance [illegible] take out of town [illegible] for the life of [illegible] do this sort of thing [illegible] out of town correspondents.

Another [illegible] more [illegible] nature of [illegible] by a young woman [illegible] summer resort inspector of [illegible] visit all the [illegible] sort list [illegible] makes [illegible] of the [illegible] the boarding houses and hotels [illegible] incidentally she has a very good time as they treat her at each place like a queen because they want her to report favorably.

Showing the pieces of interest

This simply shows you that there are here [illegible] ways than one in which a bright woman can make a living and the more original the way the better.

Summer Modes

To change to the ever interesting subject of clothes I can't help thinking from the [illegible] on athletic girls that [illegible] all it should be. It [illegible] The plaits crumple [illegible] and that especially [illegible] lng on the deck of [illegible] so that the [illegible] but not I am afraid the [illegible] plaited skirt is only for [illegible] and not for anything rougher than a ride in one's cart or automobile. It may do you one good however to know that there is a right and a wrong way of plaiting a skirt. The right way consists of having the plaits turn [illegible] be back never toward the front. If they are turned toward the [illegible] will come together [illegible] in the opposite direction there will be a space to be [illegible] for [illegible] with wrinkles and [illegible] two [illegible] plait which [illegible] hang out of line [illegible]

With [illegible] white linen [illegible] white or [illegible] shoes and [illegible] black [illegible] low [illegible] only on [illegible] and they have [illegible] military [illegible] according to taste.

To keep up to [illegible] this summer one must [illegible] skirt [illegible] dress [illegible] A shirt [illegible] skirt of [illegible] smart to match [illegible] be [illegible] summer that [illegible] and most chic [illegible] hair is [illegible] with a bow of [illegible] the gown. They [illegible] just through the heavy [illegible] back close to the neck [illegible] can be seen from the front.

And the [illegible] noted—the fine [illegible] superseded those of [illegible] These belts [illegible] match the costume.

FOR CAMPING OUT

If the camp is a permanent affair have the [illegible] at least one tent boarded [illegible] [illegible] of campers and unless you are a small boy you won't [illegible] with your feet in [illegible]

Get good heavy duck or drilling for the tents and do not omit the flies. They not only afford protection against the rain but by absorbing some of the sun's heat they keep the tent proper cooler. They are especially necessary if the tent is pitched in the open.

[illegible] mattresses [illegible] mattresses covered with waterproof duck and cots made of waterproof canvas may sound more [illegible] than a bed of fragrant pine boughs but they will be found more comfortable.

Tent stoves are to be had that come fronted with an eye to [illegible] picking. An asbestus stovepipe collar relieves all worry as to the tent catching fire.

Do not forget enough lanterns to go round. Candles are of little service in the drafty out of door life of camping.

The dowager empress of China has, so it is reported, commanded the attendance of a Japanese photographer at the palace to take her portrait. The reason for her majesty's decision to be photographed is that the people may be able to worship the imperial image as in Japan. Having her photograph taken is a new experience to the empress and is a proof of her progressive ideas, for in days past any attempt to depict her would have been considered an act of sacrilege.

GEMS AND THEIR SETTING.

It is quite a liberal education nowadays to pay a visit to a noted jeweler's, so lovely are the jewels and so delicate their setting. There has lately been a wonderful sapphire on view which seems to be in it depth all the blue of [illegible] and sea at their deepest. The diamonds which flash around the sapphire accentuate its hue which is as blue by night as by day. A reversible tie pin is another innovation set with diamonds one side

FAMOUS WOMEN IN MASCULINE ATTIRE

A RUSSIAN lady of high social standing, Mme. [illegible] permitted by the czar to be permitted to enlist regularly and serve in the [illegible] regiment to carry arms and in all respects fight her [illegible] [illegible] man. It is [illegible] old that in no country where women are oppressed more than in any other civilized land the lady [illegible] granted and Mme. [illegible] permitted to don uniform [illegible] regiment. She is the daughter of a Russian army colonel, [illegible] rider and [illegible] shot with both rifle and revolver. She is also noted for skill in sword practice and has frequently taken part in cavalry maneuver. The late Czar Alexander III was very fond of her when she was a little girl and with his approval she learned to ride and fence and became familiar with cavalry drill. Mme. [illegible] says she wants to show that a woman can fight and Nicholas II has given her opportunity.

Living in Brooklyn today is a [illegible] slight woman artistically feminine and most refined in all her tastes and habits who for years wore the [illegible] while exploring [illegible] and Mexico. She [illegible] Mrs. Alice [illegible] Plongeon, who [illegible] accompanying her husband Dr. Augustus Le Plongeon made remarkable discoveries among the [illegible] ruins of [illegible] America. One of these discoveries was the identification of the [illegible] of the characters and [illegible] inscriptions on the Central American ruins with the Egyptian hieroglyph.

It is to be noted that [illegible] women known to have habitually worn the attire the custom [illegible] have been [illegible] and most [illegible] of them [illegible] It is to be noted also that many [illegible] been French women. [illegible] as an anomaly. Her hair was cut short and there were no [illegible] in her trousseau [illegible] time [illegible] known only to a few intimate friends and thus she gathered material and atmosphere for some of the most powerful romances that have ever been penned.

In a Big Poker Game

In the famous Silver bow club in Helena they used to play big poker and Artemus I Fitchfield of Canada [illegible]

At the game one day sat Marcus Daly Senator Hearst and J B Haggin when there burst in a radiant New York drummer who had a two weeks card to the institution He marched up to the players and politely asked if he might take a hand.

Why yes come right in said Daly

The drummer pulled out a roll of bills and threw a hundred dollar note down on the table Let me have chips for that he said gravely He went to hang up his coat and hat When he returned the bill still lay on the table

A Musical Argument

George Kennan the well known journalist was talking about the naive and child like minds of sailors

Two sailors he said once attracted my attention in London They were lunching in a restaurant and I took a table near them so as to hear them talk It was plain that they had just returned from a very long voyage

Hark Hear that one of them suddenly exclaimed

All I could hear myself was a very harsh voice raised above the traffic of the street in a hideous bellow But the sailor said

Ah Jack it's many a day since we've heard that song

The one that chap is singing on the street— The Banks o Doon

Go on returned the second sailor That ain't The Banks o Doon I been a listening to it for some time It's Darling I am Growing Old

THE MUCH FOUGHT OVER CITIES OF NEWCHWANG AND YINKOW.

The cities of Newchwang and Yinkow have been so persistently menaced by the Japanese for the reason that they are of great strategic value in any scheme of military operations that may be undertaken in Manchuria Yinkow is the port of Newchwang from which place it is distant about thirty miles Its population is 60 000, while that of Newchwang is somewhat less

The Late President of the Transvaal Republic.

Though Paul Kruger passed the later years of his life as the chief figure in a complicated diplomatic game his character was elemental in its simplicity He was marked out for the leadership of his people by no advantage of education by no conspicuous superiority of traits purely intellectual but by his natural force of will This he applied to one of them in full sympathy with their traditions their prejudices their aspirations The most remote of the Boer farmers realized the complete identity of feeling and interests and trusted the head of the state with unvarying confidence

Secondary but still important factors in Kruger's ascendancy were his active participation in the early history making of the country and his great physical prowess He was an original thinker which gave him a standing in the community like that acquired by our western pioneers The younger generation revered him as one who had braved the perils of the wilderness and fought the savage and the beast to make their paths clear And when they were told how he was the greatest of runners the greatest of riders the greatest of shots the invincible giant who wrestled with savage beasts like another Coeur de Lion they were ready to pay him the honor due a legendary hero There is no difficulty at all in understanding his immovable hold upon his countrymen

When however we turn from his character to his policies the case is by no means so simple The desire for independence was both a natural and a noble desire which caused sympathy the world over and it would have been quite in accordance with the old American view if it had contemplated a grand union of Boers and an expulsion of foreign rule if not of foreign people from all South Africa But it is a question if the end at least so far as the Transvaal was concerned could not have been secured by the employment of greater tact If this would not have brought ultimate victory instead of defeat Undoubtedly the republic had a right to pass illiberal laws and undoubtedly the Jameson raid for which they were a pretext was a crime and a blunder but there was the weakness that goes with narrowness in Kruger's intensity He would have struggled better with his experienced antagonists if he had learned some of the lessons that had been pounded into them through their country's many adventures as a world power

But he was an honest sincere patriot all aflame with the sacred fire that drives men to resist foreign dominion and in one respect at least he was the most interesting man of our times He carries us back two centuries and more to the Scotch covenanter who fought with the Bible in one hand and the sword in the other He carries us still farther back to the children of Israel whose history inspired these covenanters with their martial ardor Texts from scripture ever were on his lips The Lord was at his side saying Fear not neither be thou dismayed and I will be an enemy unto thine enemies and an adversary unto thine adversaries and I will bless them that bless thee and curse him that curseth thee He too was of the original covenant his people were the Lord's people and in this faith he made the nineteenth century ring with the battle cries that nerved the followers of the patriarchs and the people of war who went with Joshua and those whom David led

Thus considering the age in which he lived the story of his life is well nigh incredible and it will always be a moving story —Chicago Record Herald

UP-TO DATE ANECDOTES

An Unfavorable Comparison

Two artists were regarding a painting in a Fifth avenue gallery a portrait of Miss [illegible] Chill Otter One of them said

Sir John Millais once showed me the original of Chill October and at the same time told me a story about it

He said that as he sat painting one gray afternoon among the reeds and rushes of the [illegible] a voice from behind him asked

Man did ye never try photography?

Never said Sir John and he continued to paint slowly

It's a hantle quicker said the voice

Yes I suppose so the painter agreed

Passion of the Collector

The Rev A B Simpson president of the Christian and Missionary alliance recently entertained a missionary from Burmah

I talked to a boys school last month the missionary said I told the boys everything interesting and uplifting that I could think of about the Burmese They were appreciative and attentive

Perhaps I said at the end there are some things I have not made clear Are there any questions you would like to ask

No one interrogated me then but after the meeting was over an intelligent looking boy approached timidly as I was leaving the platform

I I would like he began and then hesitated

Go on my lad said I There is some question you would like to ask I suppose

Yes sir said the boy I want to know if you have any foreign stamps that you could give a fellow?

Victim of a Vacation

A friend of mine an overworked editor said Senator Depew took last summer his first vacation in seventeen years

He went to a rugged New England district a quaint village that nestled at the foot of great mountains on the shore of a deep lake

He arrived on a bright fine morning and so greatly was he pleased that setting out for a little exercise he soon found himself leaping fences running singing and dancing through the country like a child

Suddenly as he skipped around a curve of a quiet road, a hand was laid on his shoulder and a stern angry face looked into his

Come with me to the station house a harsh voice said

Why what for said the amazed editor

I am the town constable said the other and for the last half hour I've been watching ye jumpin over the fences and singin and dancin No sane man would act so an I'm goin to lock ye up for an escaped lunatic

THE PETITION IS REJECTED

Friends Petition for the Release of Dr. Ferrell

HAS SERVED SIX MONTHS IN THE PENITENTIARY

The Petition for Dr Ferrell's Release Is Signed by Hundreds of Prominent Citizens, Nearly All Court Officials and Members of Jury Before Whom He Is Tried

A telegram from Columbus announces the rejection of the application of Dr James H Ferrell for a pardon by the board of pardons

It will be remembered that Dr Ferrell is serving a sentence of two years in the penitentiary having been sentenced in the local court on a charge of attempted criminal operation committed on the person of Miss Laura C Hite who died shortly after the alleged crime was committed

The doctor has now served about six months in the penitentiary and his friends throughout Marion and Marion county confidently expected that he would be pardoned at this time But recently a petition bearing the signatures of hundreds of the prominent citizens of the county and city and of nearly all of the officers of the court and the jury trying him was forwarded to the board of pardons asking that the doctor be released.

Three Inch Lizard Vomited From Stomach of Bellefontaine Woman

One of the strangest cases that ever came under the notice of the medical fraternity of this city and possibly without a parallel in the state is that of Mrs Daniel Millner of Eastern avenue this city

Mrs Millner has been an invalid for some four years and becoming worse than usual last Saturday midnight and suffering great pain the family physician Dr Ralston was summoned and he at once discovered that the trouble was in the patient's stomach and prescribed an emetic This was taken and it was not long before Mrs Millner vomited up a water lizard three inches in length which wiggled and showed a lively disposition

The doctor asked Mrs Millner if she had ever used spring water to which she answered that she had some four years ago when she resided on the Loos place on South Plumvalley street near Kaylor's mill pond The patient has been rapidly recovering her health since her experience of Saturday She is the mother of a four weeks old baby —Bellefontaine Examiner

The Golden Opportunity of the Southern States.

The federal government is engaged just now in opening for settlement some 3,000,000 acres of public lands in Nebraska Wyoming and South Dakota the result of treaties between the Indians and the congress by which these lands have reverted to the government Reports from the Rosebud agency country show that thousands of applicants will be disappointed in their efforts to secure homesteads or the right to purchase any of the agricultural lands that will thus be thrown upon the market Officials of the land department state that never since the close of the civil war has there been such a demand for homes for farm lands of all kinds Many of those who have been looking for homes in the newly opened country and have been disappointed are turning toward the lands of the Canadian Northwest Already more than 90,000 American homeseekers have located in the Canadian country and indications are that fully 10,000 more will be added to that colony this year With the disposition of the lands now offered for pre emption or sale the government's part in furnishing free homes will be about ended The public land available for agricultural purposes has been about all disposed of and any additional lands that will be placed on the market will come through the operation of the irrigation law and by sale of irrigated lands This property reclaimed by government expenditures in irrigation enterprises will cost more than improved farms in the South and the area of them will be very limited

The opportunity would seem to be ripe for the South to take advantage of this demand for farm lands and the inability of the North and West to supply it The great need of the South is for a generous inflow of the white settlers of the thrifty and enterprising sort The men who are now going in to the West and to the Canadian Northwest are the restless pushing busy enterprising class just the kind needed for the development of the rich latent resources of the South There is no further promise for the homeseekers in the West and Northwest unless they are willing to battle with the climatic conditions that make every penny secured more than doubly earned The South offers many superior advantages to the men who have their fortunes to make and the will and grit to make them It only remains for the railroad organizations and the commercial bodies of the South to organize a systematic campaign for the purpose of securing desirable immigration The railroads of the West led in this work years ago and carried their campaign into Europe They displayed maps of the United States with the entire South printed in black ink and labeled the black belt and accompanied by warnings to prospective immigrants to keep away from that country The damage done by that kind of railroad rivalry can never be calculated The South has suffered from it for a generation by seeing desirable immigrants hurrying to the cold and semi arid plains of the West and Northwest and shunning the attractive South as though it were a plague infected district It is high time that the South take steps to counteract the ill effects of this unfortunate kind of advertising It can be done by united effort and persistent energetic action and without resort to any misrepresentation —Washington Post

CIGAR ASHES ARE GOOD FOR LAWNS.

A point of ash about an inch long had accumulated on the end of the cigar that a Brooklyn citizen was smoking on an open trolley car as he was going across the bridge the other evening and he kept careful watch of it When it was in danger of falling the Brooklynite took out a long and slender paper bag of the size that will conveniently hold four or five lead pencils In this receptacle he faithfully deposited the ash and closing the flap of the envelope replaced the bag in his waist coat pocket and continued his smoke The proceeding had been observed by another Brooklynite who sat next to him

Hello neighbor said the observant one afraid of letting your ashes get on the people's clothes?

The term neighbor in Brooklyn is applied to persons exclusively who live in the same block

Gee whiz continued the neighbor using also an exclamation that is still current in Brooklyn you must be a jewel of a husband and father if you are so susceptible about other people's feelings

I don't make any pretense of caring for other people's clothing any more than any one else replied the smoker as he [illegible] puffing at his cigar This is a selfish proceeding I put the ashes on my lawn to make the grass grow

His companion had seen the lawn without noticing anything especial about it except that it was always green from May to October He remembered that the lawn was one of those seven by nine plats similar to thousands in front of Brooklyn residences

You see continued the smoker it occurred to me a couple of years ago that tobacco takes from the soil some of its richest ingredients I had read somewhere that the main reason for the impoverished condition of most farms in the tobacco growing region of Virginia was the improvident management of the early tobacco planters They had taken out the strength of the soil that is the valuable minerals and these valuable products the planters were either too lazy or too ignorant to restore by means of fertilizers So I just reasoned it out that if I put cigar ashes on my lawn it helped the grass grow

How about the stubs? inquired the neighbor with a tinge of sarcasm I should think butts would be just as much of a fertilizer as ashes

They are said the other not noticing the sarcasm

How does the old woman like the effect on the lawn rather decorative isn't it In Brooklyn old woman is neighborly for wife

Well it looks that way in theory was the reply but as a matter of fact you'd never notice em They seem to assimilate or something like that and besides there is not so much of a pile of em as you might suppose The grass soon covers em up

You see continued the smoker earnestly I have found that my experiment has paid well My next door neighbors on each side have had their lawns dug up four times in five years I have lived in my house and I have not had to have my lawn replaced with fresh turf once in that time So [illegible] people [illegible] never have lawns that are anything but dried up and parched looking They water them a good deal oftener than I do [illegible] of my friends [illegible] scientific sharp and he gave me a point or two He said that 77 per cent of tobacco is calcium and potassium salts that 1? per cent is magnesium and sodium salts and ? per cent is phosphoric acid This last is one of the most valuable fertilizers

All of the products of the tobacco do not go to the lawn of course as the scientific sharp told me for some of them go off in smoke but in the matter of the stubs the whole tobacco is returned to the soil This is not to be sneezed at when you remember that a smoker one of the usual kind who does not smoke his cigar down closely throws it away when it's about four fifth consumed That leaves a good deal to the good

Well asked the neighbor as they left the car and were about to separate do you buy your own cigars or does your wife buy them for you?

I don't see what that has to do with the fertility of a lawn remarked the city agriculturist bracing him slightly

I do the cigars my wife buys for me would kill the grass and weeds too

FIGHT WITH BUMBLEBEES

Benjamin Solomon Drives into a Nest While at Work.

INSECTS ATTACK HORSES WHICH TRY TO RUN AWAY

The Young Man Is Kicked Upon the Knee, But Pluckily Holds to the Lines Until His Cries Bring to Him Assistance—The Horses Are Badly Stung but not Fatally.

Though badly hurt by being kicked by a horse and stung by bees which swarmed about him and a team of horses which he had been driving to a hay rake, seventeen year old Benjamin Solomon, son of Charles Solomon, four miles south of the city, displayed remarkable nerve and a courage few possess Friday, July 1[illegible].

Young Solomon was seated on a hay rake when the horse ran into a bumble bees' nest. In a twinkling the animals were covered with the angry insects. Wild with frenzy they attempted to run away, but the boy leaped from the seat to the ground and managed to hold them. He was kicked on the right leg below the knee by one of the horses, the cork of the horse's shoe sinking through the flesh to the bone, inflicting a bad wound.

While the horses were leaping about trying to run with the bees stinging them at every jump, young Solomon clung to the lines and yelled for help while he himself was being stung in several places.

The boy's father hearing his cries ran to [illegible] assistance and succeeded in driving the bees off with brushes. Young Solomon was then taken to the [illegible] where Dr. [illegible] of Pro[illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] him.

It was [illegible] believed that his leg had been fractured but this was not the case. The wound bled profusely and proved very painful.

THE ORIENTAL YANKEES

Japanese Are Adaptive Not Imitative Says Joaquin Miller

INSTANCES IN A BOXER CAMPAIGN

How the Little Brown Men of Nippon Were Driven to American Hats and Bread When Fighting the Boxers—Original Methods of Japanese In the Practice of Killing.

Joaquin Miller writes in the July number of the [illegible] under the title "The Little Brown Men of Nippon" a paper on the Japanese particularly interesting to American readers. He gained the experience [illegible] during the Boxer uprising in China. Says Mr. Miller in part:

The English [illegible] the [illegible] human [illegible] the oriental Yankees. If shrewdness and ingenuity are meant by the term, it may [illegible] the Jap can turn out anything—anything from a [illegible] to a battleship—and do it in almost no time, but he is not a creative or inventive Yankee. It is pointed out that all the banks, even all the Japanese banks, employ Chinese [illegible] because the Chinaman is naturally more constant and willing to be a clerk. The Nippon oriental has [illegible] purposes.

It is to be doubted whether he is imitative as the Yankee is imitative, but it is safe to say he is the most adaptive creature alive.

The first day's fighting out from Tientsin up the [illegible] river toward Peking was, after the first few hours in which the Japanese led the charge supported by the British, Americans and Russians, a running fight. The hot July sun fell on the backs of the pursuing Japanese from 10 o'clock until darkness. This was their first fighting in [illegible] and little gold rimmed caps in a hot country are [illegible] their first. So many collapsed from sunstroke that the emperor telegraphed "Use the American hat."

The Japanese had carried the telegraph right along with them all day, three constructors and operators being shot by random bullets from the Boxers.

My duties as assistant to General Bennett, head of the Red Cross, kept me to the front, kept me to the firing line all day and late, begging, borrowing and picking up the American hat for suffering little brown soldiers.

At bivouac it was found that the little ball of cooked rice which each soldier carried on his back between his shoulders had soured. The soured rice and the muddy water of the Peiho, spoiled with the floating bodies of the dead Boxers, made hundreds ill. Then another telegram: "Use American bread!"

The King of Corea sent 10,000 sacks of flour that came with incredible swiftness, and the adaptive little brownie was the next morning, as a rule, [illegible] with his little black [illegible] back in the American hat.

No, he is not an imitative Yankee, merely adaptive. And yet he has some very original methods in the trade of killing.

For instance, he never flourishes his sword in battle and he rarely points a gun. His short black gun is across his breast, strapped across his breast, his left hand clutching the pendent muzzle as he dashes forward and right in the face of the firing enemy. His right arm is in the air. Suddenly, when right in the face of his foe, his hand [illegible] and his sword leaps out swift and sudden [illegible] upward. It is small, short [illegible] and sharp [illegible]. It is never seen in battle, only felt.

He may adopt [illegible] adopted the heavy [illegible] with [illegible] which to kill him. [illegible]
